Topix Net Total Return rose +0.1% in local terms after a sharp fall on the final day of the month with the news that a 25% tariff on all cars exported to the USA will soon come into effect. The yield on the 10 year JGB hit 1.59%, its highest level since 2008.

February core inflation was higher than expected at 3%, above the BOJ's 2% target for the 35th consecutive month. Inflation looks likely to persist as Japan's largest trade union, Rengo, with 7m members won an average pay rise of 5.49%, up on last year's increase. The government also reported that land prices rose 2.7% nationwide, the largest increase since 1992, including an 11.8% rise in Tokyo.

Unwinding of strategic shareholdings in the Toyota Group continues. Toyota Industries will now reduce its stake in listed subsidiary Aichi Corp from 54% to 20%, selling a portion of shares back to Aichi Corp and some to trading company Itochu. There were governance improvements at Fuji Media as it announced it would cut the board from an unwieldy 17 directors to a majority independent board of 11 while also promising to re-examine its capital allocation practices. Net cash, investments and rental real estate are worth more than the market capitalisation so there is considerable scope for improvement. Yokohama-based bank Concordia Financial Group published a new medium-term plan committing to cut strategic shareholdings from 16% of net assets to less than 10% which would imply sales of roughly ¥80bn, almost 10% of the market capitalisation.

There were several encouraging shareholder returns announcements from other portfolio companies. Life insurer T&D Holdings amended its dividend policy, shifting from a dividend on equity to a 60% payout ratio citing growing confidence in its profit outlook. It raised next year's dividend from ¥80 to ¥120 while also announcing a ¥100bn share buyback, equivalent to 6% of its market capitalisation. TV Asahi hiked its dividend by ¥10 to ¥60 reflecting large gains on the sale of strategic shareholdings.

The number of listed companies in Japan declined last year for the first time thanks to buoyant M&A. The first quarter of 2025 showed a similar trend as the Nikkei newspaper reported a record high number of 31 delistings, consisting of 23 acquisitions and 8 management buy outs. This month saw a $2.4bn bid from KKR and state-backed fund Japan Investment Corp for optical equipment maker Topcon at a 100% premium to the average price in the previous year. This came after activists urged the company to consider going private.

Bids are becoming increasingly competitive: Makino Milling has reportedly received two counter offers to Nidec's unsolicited takeover bid in December. The threat of an acquisition can also prove a powerful incentive for management to act as Seven & I Holdings announced plans for a ¥2trn share buyback, one of Japan's largest ever and worth 40% of its market capitalisation, as well as the sale of non-core businesses, to fend off the proposed acquisition by Canadian competitor Alimentation Couche-Tard.

Ian and Karin were both in Japan this month for company meetings. We continue to find attractively valued opportunities, frequently among domestic and mid cap stocks, where there is little or no research coverage. Meanwhile, net cash and investments are still worth almost half the market capitalisation of our non-financial holdings, and there is clear scope to spin off non-core businesses to improve returns further.
