TOPIX rose by 1.4% in local currency terms during the month but the yen continued to decline. Japanese individual investors have been buying local equities in recent weeks but it is also the case that part of the flow into NISAs has been into global stocks, particularly in the US, perhaps encouraged by the continued favourable returns especially in yen terms.

A recent report by SMBC highlighted that the spring wage increases will mostly hit monthly wage packets in June and July which may help consumption. Department store sales have already been very strong supported by the boom in overseas visitor numbers which continue to grow and are now comfortably surpassing pre-covid highs. Inflation figures remain ahead of the Bank of Japan's 2% target and most commentators expect at least one rise in interest rates in the second half of the year.

The unwinding of cross shareholdings has been an established trend for some time but the pace is accelerating. During the month, city bank SMFG and insurer MS&AD announced a substantial sale of their holdings in trading company Mitsui. There were further divestments within the Toyota group. A number of group companies, including Toyota Motor, Denso and Toyota Industries, will be selling a large portion of their shares in Aisin. Aisin also unveiled a share buyback, albeit smaller in size than the selling by the group companies. Similarly, Toyota Motor sold some of its shares in Toyota Industries as part of the latter's ¥180bn buyback. Despite this acceleration in share sales, non-financial corporates remain net buyers of the market as share buybacks are in aggregate outweighing the cross-shareholding unwinding. According to Tachibana Securities, share buybacks announced in May exceeded ¥7trn, a record amount for a single month.

The acceleration is a direct result of the corporate governance improvements and commitments by management to improve return on equity. It may also in the long run encourage more M&A, which started to see increased activity in June. Kirin announced the acquisition of cosmetics company Fancl, of which it already owned 33%. The offer price was a 43% premium to Fancl's share price and valued the company at just over $2bn. In the transportation sector, trucking company Seino acquired 70% of Mitsubishi's Electric's logistics subsidiary for $380m while Chilled & Frozen Logistics received an $790m offer from SG Holdings, which trumped an earlier bid from another company.

Results of voting at company AGMs are starting to come through. Once again there was a record number of shareholder proposals, with 113 companies receiving a total of 419 proposals. We voted in favour of shareholder proposals at 5 of our holdings, most of which were for share buybacks. Historically an approval rating for directors below 80% has often triggered some response from boards, and a sharp decrease in support can also prompt action. Fuji Media, which we highlighted last year as having only 58% support for the president, saw a rise to 72% this year, perhaps reflecting some progress on cross shareholding unwinding and share buybacks. Construction and real estate company Toda Corporation, however, saw the approval rating of its chairman fall to 71%. Within the fund, we voted against the re-election of directors at 7 companies, mostly due to a lack of sufficient progress on shareholder returns and capital allocation.

Overall, the pressure on management to improve their returns on equity and raise their price to books is showing little sign of abating. As a result of this trend and the continued modest valuations of the portfolio we remain positive on the outlook.
